MISCELLANEOUS READING. FRASER RIVER

On the subject of these mines, the editor of the New Caledonian, expresses his ideas in the following verses:-Last Sunday, on my winding way To learn the topics of the day,

All sounds, all voices, seemed to say, Fraser river. At each saloon the glasses rung-The revellers, a little sprung— Toasted, hic-cupped, laughed and sung,

Fraser river. The merchant with his door half closed, To show his wares were not exposed

For sale, kept muttering as he dosed, Fraser river. The dandy, with his ruffled shirt, Forgot to gaze on Madam's skirt, And simply said to Fanny Flirt,

The miner, leaning on his pick, As "happy" as a "perfect brick," Said, one card only takes the trick-Fraser river. The parson, as he left the church,

Fraser river.

Was arguing with Brother Burch; These words I heard-"left in the lurch," "Fraser river." I wandered on beyond the town-

The walleys in unbottoned gown, Said, "you bet," "get," "now pungle down," "Vazee eever." The mining claims were in a trance; Picks, shovels, sluices, looked askance, And said, the boss has gone to-France-

Fraser river. I hastened up the mountain steep; The quartz mills all had gone to sleep; The winds were whispering low and deep,

Fraser river. I gave it up, and homeward bent; The waters murmured as I went, Go, editor, with breeches rent,

On his first trip by land to see his father in do do 10 half do 49 00 bracing the Geography, History, Statistics and do do 10 quarter do 20 00 a general account of every City, Town and do do 10 eighth do 1000 Station, with their exact distance from each Station, with their exact distance from each abominable inquisitiveness of the New England tavern-keepers. Neither man nor beast could travel among them in comfort. No matter how wet or weary, how hungry or thirsty, the poor traveller might be, he was not to expect an atom of refreshment from the officers and through time Schedules, by George silly publicans until their most pestiferous curiosity was first gratified. And then Job himself could not stand such questions as they would good him with; such as, where he came from, and where he might be a going, and what religion he might be of, and if he was a married man, and so on. After having been prodigiously teased in this way for several days, until at last the bare sight of a public house almost threw him into an ague, he determined to try the following remedy at the very pext tavern: Soon as he slighted from his horse be desired the tavern-keeper to col-▼UST RECEIVED.—100 pieces Bleached lect his whole family, wife, children, and servants, every soul of them, for he had something vastly important to communicate. All being assembled, and wondering what he had to say, be thus adressed them: "My name is Benjamin Franklin. I am a printer by trade. I live, when at home, in Philadelphia. In Boston I have a father; a good old man, Diapers, Towellings, &c.; Swiss and Cambric | who taught me, when I was a boy, to read my Orleans Delta, Mobile Register, Charleston Muslins, Mull and Nainsook do.; White, Red, book and say my prayers.
